Oke-Ogbere link bridge makes N150 million in first year

By Damilola Kushimo

At the rate of no fewer than 1500 commuters paying various tolls daily, the owners of the Oke-Ogbere Link Bridge made N150million in the first year of operations.

ECHONEWS learnt that no fewer than 200 buses, 150 tricycles, 100 motorcycles and a thousand pedestrians use the bridge on daily basis which amount to 529,250 commuters accessed the bridge in a year.

With N50 toll paid per pedestrian and N200, N150 and N100 paid by car, bus and motorcycle and tricycle respectively, the company has made not less than N150million..

Since it was commissioned on Thursday December 5, 2019, the road users have significantly increased despite paying tolls. The Bridge was constructed by De-Prinocc Construction Company Limited on concession last year.

It was concessioned to the company by the federal government under the watch of National Inland Waterways Authority (NIWA).

The bridge was built under Public Private Partnership (PPP) agreement to link Oke-Ogbere community in Isolo LCDA to other neighbouring communities since the artificial canal earlier constructed had divided the community from others.

The bridge has bridged the gap between Oke-Ogbere community and other neighbouring communities including Bucknor, Jakande Gate, Isheri Oshun, Amuwo Odofin, Okota and Isolo as it has since become a reliable escape route for almost all road users coming from Ejigbo, Egbe-Idimu, Ikotun-Igando LCDAs to Isolo, Amuwo Odofin, Mushin, Oshodi-Isolo LGAs from the time-wasting traffic congestion on the narrowed Mushin-Isolo Road.

According to users sampled by Echoneews, most of them love using the route because of the conveniences such as dual paths for vehicles, electricity that illuminates and 24-hour Closed Circuit Television (CCTV).

They also cite regular patrol by security operatives from both neighbouring police stations and also security operatives from Area D.

Commissioning the project last year, former Minister for Defence, Sen. Musiliu Obanikoro commended the CEO of De-Prinocc Construction Company, Ambassador Prince Yommy Ogungbe for citing such infrastructure between the communities, emphasising that such project needs to be replicated in areas that crave for development in Lagos state to connect them.

On the occasion, Ogungbe promised that the bridge would stand the test of time and lead to the development of the environment.

To fulfil its promise, the company graded the access roads leading directly to the bridge.

Ogungbe said: "The cost implication of Oke-Ogbere link bridge is high. The construction was done with best quality of construction materials and with effective maintenance, the project would last for more than 50 years.

"Before construction, we did soil test and realised that the soil was muddy. In each of the pipes we buried inside, we still have another 16MM iron rod inside before casting with concrete. The pipe inside is mine steel that will be there for good 30 years with nothing happening to it."

Commenting on the bridge and the company's handling of the business, the Baale of Oke-Ogbere Community, High Chief Tajudeen Amoo Orlowo, said it has been useful to his community and the other neighbouring communities.

He noted that in the past one year of its operation, the bridge has attracted other developments in terms of economic and social growth to the community.

The monarch supported the claim by referencing the new businesses at the entrance of the community road especially the hotel.

He said the the owner of the hotel has also interlocked the road from the main entrance into the community to the front of his business premises.

The chief explained that the ongoing construction of second outfall on the Community Road by the state government was encouraged by the growing population of the community as a result of its connection to other communities.

His words: "We've been enjoying the facility as there have been rapid developments not only on our side but, on both ends of the divide. Before now, they sold a plot at the rate of N2.5million or N3million but now, it is between N10million and N12million over there and between N30million and N35million here.

"The infrastructure is an enormous blessing, it has brought a lot of developments to the community and we hope to see more. The people are happy. The bridge has been so important on the basis that it connects communities together. There has been great ease on interrelation and inter-trading." Meanwhile, some of the commuters who spoke to ECHONEWS were not bothered with the tolls they paid as they were particularly concerned with the comfort of getting to their destinations with ease since the bridge was constructed.

By Damilola Kushimo

The Lagos State chapter of International Visitor Leadership Programme (IVLP) has finally completed the mentoring of 120 students of Ajumoni Senior Grammar School.

Having gone through six weeks of intensive mentorship programme in the first quarter of the year, the association formally graduated the students in a ceremonious manner.

The council leader, Hon. Remy Shittu Remy, who is an alumnus of the association and also the Team Leader charged the students to ensure that the knowledge they acquired reflect in their personality, urging them to pass it on to their contemporaries in the community as he further advised them to remain motivated in becoming the change and solution they want to see in the community, the country and the world at large.

He assured that the team would continue monitoring the students' progress to ensure that they make good decisions that would positively impact their lives.

The students were presented with certificates and three novels in addition to the backpack of textbooks and other writing materials that were delivered to them at home during the coronavirus pandemic.

One of the mentees, Ezekiel Ilori, a commercial student, said he had since aligned his life to the teachings he got during the mentorship exercise, explaining how some of his friends tried to lure him into smoking and internet fraud and how he, in turn, advised them against such way of life.

He said: "When some of my friends told me to join them in smoking and get involved in internet fraud - Yahoo Yahoo, I made them understand that it is not good and that there is no future in it. I advised them to turn a new leaf and try to make a better future for themselves. I will like to further advise them to

Politicians mourn, bid Kinoshi farewell

By Damilola Kushimo

The death of Chief Funsho Kinoshi on Thursday, December 3, 2020, has thrown the whole of Oshodi-Isolo LGA as community leaders poured glowing and emotional tributes on the elder statesman.

Admirers of his legacies trooped to his residence to commiserate with his family. Chief Joseph Oluwafunsho Akanni Kinoshi was a pioneer Member of the Lagos State House of Assembly where he represented Lagos Island Constituency II twice.

Till his death at the First Cardiology Consultant, where he was being treated, he was a politician of great reputation, a philanthropist and lover of all.

He was one of the foremost leaders of the All Progressives Congress (APC) in the state and his influence was deeply rooted in his ward, Apena ward in Isolo Local Council Development Area (LCDA) and Oshodi-Isolo LGA at large.

Since his death on Thursday, December 3, 2020, emotional tributes have been written by notable community and political leaders across the state about his personality, life and times as some described him as a great mobiliser whose demise has left a great vacuum.

In his condolence message, the Member of the House of Representatives in Oshodi-Isolo Constituency II, Hon. Ganiyu Johnson wrote: "The late Kinoshi was a force to reckon with in politics of our great party, the All Progressives Congress (APC). His contributions to the development of the constituency cannot be overemphasized. He would be greatly remembered for the legacy that he has left behind. Chief Kinoshi will be greatly missed by the people of Lagos State and Oshodi-Isolo Constituency II in particular because his exit has left a very big vacuum."

While he prayed that God grants the deceased family the needed fortitude to bear the irreparable loss, Hon. Jude Idimogu, the Member of the Lagos State House of Assembly, explained that much solace would be taken in the realities that the deceased left legacies which would continue to bear eloquent testimonies of his eventful life on earth even though he had died at the time when his wealth of experience is most needed to move the constituency forward.

Also, the Council Leader, Isolo LCDA, Hon. Remy Shittu Remy described him as his political benefactor whose shocking demise is a colossal loss to Isolo and Lagos APC.

"He was very generous, straightforward and blunt in telling the truth. He contributed immensely towards the growth of Apena ward in terms of finance and provision of supports for the less privileged. He also always purchased certificate examination forms for indigent students in the community. His impact will be greatly felt," said Apena Ward Chairman, Mr. Olawale Dasuki.

His friend, Alhaji M.A Alebiosu who is the Chairman of Police Community Relations Committee (PCRC) Ago-

Okota Division, said: "He was my brother and friend. He could barely do things without my knowledge. We've been friends as far back as 1970. He was so loving, generous, compassionate and a humanitarian. He will be greatly missed."

Also writing about the late Kinoshi, Prince Bayo Osiyemi said: "A second Republic state legislator in Lagos State and well-known socialite, late Chief Olufunso Kinoshi was elected in 1979 as a member of the Lagos State House of Assembly on the platform of the Unity Party of Nigeria and he was utterly supportive of the Lateef Jakande administration that set the pace for the economic emancipation of Lagos State. "Before his foray into politics in 1978, he had made some modest achievements in business and was a constant fixture in the social circuit during which the miliki king of juju music, Chief Commander Ebenezer Obey waxed a long playing record, eulogising Kinoshi and his pals like Chief Niyi Adegbenro, his friend and in-law and Chief Layiwola Amoje.

"In the 90s, he participated in the PPP programme of the military administration, partnering, for example, with the old Mushin Local Government under the public-private arrangement to build the model market in front of the secretariat of the present Odiolowo LCDA on Town Planning Way in Ilupeju Estate."

Neighbours around his modest residence on Funsho Kinoshi street at Okota testified to his yeoman's effort in assisting to develop Okota area from a sleepy neighbourhood to the bubbly residential/commercial hub that it now is, between Isolo and Amuwo Odofin. Those who knew him in his early days on Lagos Island eulogised him as "a jolly good fellow."

He is survived by wives and children as well as a sibling, Ms Yeside Kinoshi, whose former husband, Chief Tunde Okusanya was once the chairman of the old Lagos Mainland Local Government.

Drug Addiction and Crime Prevention for 10 senior secondary schools in Isolo; IVLP Alumni Mentorship Programme for Students of Ajumoni Senior Grammar School as well as Covid-19 Stimulus Packages for 100 physically challenged people in Isolo.

In addition to developing the youths through the programmes, Olaleye noted that the council leader has also exposed the council international recognition.

We are lucky to have his kind. Where you have able hands, areas where your mind will not shift to they will help you shift it to it. This is not his first time. I will only encourage him to do more."

He's a blessing to the local government.

"People like us can be very proud and very happy when we are no longer at this level. With people like him in the local government, we know that the local government will go to places."

Hon. Shamsudeen Olaleye

In commemoration of this year's World AIDS Day, the Lagos State chapter of Youth Action Movement of Nigeria (YAM) in partnership with Planned Parenthood Federation of Nigeria (PPFN) has staged a road show to enlighten the residents on HIV/AIDS and stigmatisation. The bodies walked across several communities in Isolo Local Council Development Area (LCDA), creating awareness about the deadly virus and the need to shun stigmatisation.

According to the State Coordinator of YAM, Omolaja Okesola, people living with the virus need to be shown love rather than being stigmatised. He explained that in tandem with the 2020 World AIDS Day "Ending the HIV/AIDS Epidemic: Resilience and Impact," the NGO and its partner were playing their part in creating solidarity among people who live with the virus and further try to ensure that stigmatisation against them is discouraged in the community.

"We've come out to canvass for the eradication of HIV and AIDS globally and to reduce the risk of contacting it by creating enough awareness and sensitisation about the disease. It is an annual event and the ultimate goal is to see to the end of the epidemic in our country as a whole, starting from our community," he stated.

Also speaking the State Chairperson of PPFN, Comr. Olumide Ojetunde, emphasised that government and other NGOs need to further complement the efforts in order to totally eradicate the virus in the society.

He noted that since the virus was discovered in 1988 there has been a lot of stigmatisation against those who live with it which has not helped in eradicating the virus. "We need to accept those who live with the virus because that's not the end of life for them. We need to show them more love and also pass the awareness around. People can have the virus and still live a normal life. We need to stop the stigmatisation. They need us. I'll advise other NGOs and government to do more in regards to this course to ensure that the risk of contacting it is further reduced and our society becomes HIV and AIDS free."

Ejigbo community laments over 9 months blackout

By Saheed Afolabi

Growing out of patience to get electricity supply back into the community after nine months of blackout, the residents on Edegbeja, Awoyemi and Coker Road communities in Ejigbo Local Council Development Area (LCDA) have again cried to Ikeja Electricity Distribution Company (IKEDC) for immediate replacement of their transformer to restore power to the community. As learnt by ECHONEWS, the communities had earlier experienced a 14-month total power outage due to a faulty transformer but later got the power back for less than 18 months after the transformer was repaired. However, they have found themselves in the similar situation since Wednesday, February 19, 2020 when personnel of IKEDC carried out a checkup on the transformer and reportedly detected a looming technical glitch which necessitated extraction of the transformer for a comprehensive repair. Meanwhile, the electricity distribution company has hitherto not repaired nor replaced the transformer, subjecting the community to total blackout. The residents lamented that the protracted power seizure has greatly affected the economic and social developments of the communities. They said they have written so many letters to the company but without getting positive responses. In one of the numerous Save our Souls (SOS) letters written by the tenants and residents' association signed by Hon. (Mrs.) Yetunde Awodeko to the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of IKEDC, the communities explained that the said transformer was working perfectly until Friday, February 7, this year when technical crew from Idimu Undertaking Office inspected the transformer as part of routine check and reported that the device was short of oil and ultimately needed comprehensive check to avert impending technical glitch. However, on Wednesday, February 19 another technical crew from Oke-Afa Undertaking Office informed the community that the issues could not be rectified on the spot hence the need to take away the transformer for repair. It was learnt that the community, at first, acting on the knowledge from previous experience, kicked against the idea but was persuaded to compromise based on strong assurances from the team that within three days the transformer would be returned but, it has not been returned, making it 292 days without light. The latest reminder which was dated Thursday, November 19, 2020 emphasised that substantiate amount of the debt owed by each household has been paid and assured that the balance would be paid when the transformer is returned. The initial letter read in part: "We are using this medium to strongly appeal to the management of your organisation and your good self, to please, use your good office to avert the likely crippling of the epileptic economic situation in our community. "We also use this medium to assure your organisation that all outstanding debts will be promptly paid without any delay if a functional transformer is reinstalled and subsequent payment shall be paid as and when due." It was learnt that, as against the appeal of the community to have their transformer replaced in order to encourage other defaulting households to pay up the expected 10 per cent of their debts, the distribution company insists that the community's part of the agreement must be met before the transformer could be returned. Meanwhile, the management of the company told ECHONEWS that the company is putting in its best to fulfil its promise of the agreement with the community, urging the residents to honour their side of the agreement in order to fast-track the process and ultimate replacement. "We are already on it and there is an established understanding between the company and the community already. We often visit them in our course of trying to find a lasting solution to the issue and we're currently filing our report but they have already entered an agreement with our company which they are yet to fulfil. We are already working on it on our side. They've not fulfilled their part of the agreement and that's what is still delaying the release of a new transformer to them to replace the one that got spoilt." In further response to this, one of the affected residents, Mr. Lawal Moshood, emphasised that a lot of people in the community have, so far, fulfilled the financial obligation, assuring that others would be encouraged to pay when the transformer is replaced. "A lot of people have been paying but, we believed that others will be better encouraged if they see the transformer on ground and that is why we are appealing to IKEDC to give this a consideration. Power supply is a necessity that almost everyone cannot do without. We appeal to them to replace the transformer so as to encourage people to pay and meet the target. "The blackout has grounded so many businesses in the community, economic activities have been on the downward spiral, the blackout has affected us," he lamented.

Razeva Schools graduate 100 students

By Saheed Afolabi

About 46 new secondary school leavers from Razeva Schools, Ejigbo have joined a host of other tertiary institution admission seekers as the schools graduated 100 students. During the 2020/2021 Graduation/Valedictory service held at the school premises last weekend, 46 senior students were graduated, 30 graduated from junior class to senior class while the remains were primary six going to secondary school and nursery 2 going to primary school.

The School Principal, Mrs. Godwin Ngozi urged the graduating students to be more hardworking and try to excel wherever they go. She commended the students graduated from both junior and senior school for their excellent performances, which positioned the school to be ranked one of the best in Oshodi-Isolo LGA by the Educational District, advising them to sustain the feat in their further education pursuit. Also speaking, the Head Teacher of the Primary section, Mr. Segun Alake, disclosed that during the last placement test examination for the Basic six students, the school performed excellently. He therefore admonished the pupils to always distinguish themselves with good behaviours and remain excellent in their academic performances. The outgoing Head Girl of the school, Ezeigwe Chiamaka, said she has been groomed to explore opportunities around the world, adding that she is bold to compete favourably with any of her contemporaries across the globe. She said: "All our dreams can come through if we have the courage to pursue them." She therefore appealed to other students to always work harder and have 'hard work' as their watchword. For the outgoing Head Boy, Lyan Otakpor, Razeva School represents the world on a smaller scale. He said: "I experienced it all here. I'm ready for the world because our stay in this great citadel of learning has been tasking but God saw us through. I thank the management and staff for their care, love towards us." Ejigbo based gynaecologist, Dr. Wale Farayola, has disclosed that heavy menstruation is one of the major problems of fibroid patients. Farayola, who works with Lagos State Maternal and Child center, Amuwo Odofin (Obstetrics and Gynaecology), told ECHONEWS that fibroids are non-cancerous growths made of smooth muscle cells and fibrous connective tissue in the uterus. According to him, fibroids can develop at any time during a woman's childbearing years. "Heavy menstruation or bleeding with or without pain is one of the major presenting complaints in people with fibroids. "Some may have their menstruation extending beyond the normal time of three to seven days. "Symptoms include menstrual disturbance (irregular bleeding), the menstrual pattern may become irregular and the bleeding might be heavy in the presence of fibroid polyp or when a submucous fibroid becomes ulcerated. "A large mass of fibroid may compress the surrounding organs and present corresponding symptoms like frequent urination or retention of urine. "Fibroids may also cause mechanical distortion of the fallopian tubes which may cause infertility," he explained. The gynaecologist said no treatment was required if a fibroid has no symptoms. However, he advised that fibroids which enlarge the uterus to about the size of a 12-weeks pregnancy, whether with symptoms or not, should preferably be removed. According to him, treatment could be medical or surgical, stating that medical treatment is the method of ovarian suppression using a gonadotrophin-releasing hormone analogue. "These suppress circulating estradiol and progesterone levels by shutting down the pituitary-ovarian axis. "Unfortunately, while very effective in shrinking fibroids when the ovarian function returns, the fibroids regrow to their previous dimensions. "Also long-term use results in significant bone loss," the gynaecologist said. Farayola said some surgical treatments for fibroid include polypectomy, vaginal hysterectomy, vaginal myomectomy, abdominal hysterectomy and abdominal myomectomy. He said that the recurrence rate of fibroids is extremely low especially with newer operative techniques.
